MEDICINAL.

Take Simmons Liver Regulator One Dose

I have been a teacher for twenty years, and during that time have had repeated attacks of headache, produced by torpid liver, and I have been entirely cured by the use of Summons' Liver Regulator. I found it to be of so mild a character in its action as not to interfere, in the least, with my duties in the school room. To those similarly situated and subject to same, I cannot too highly recommend Simmons' Liver Regulator.

Yan Lee and His Mother-in-Law. DEAR S. L. R.—FRIENDS: I consider one dose of Simmons' Liver Regulator worth $100. I was constipated, had beadache, could cat nothing with satisfaction or appetite; had the blues and felt altogether out of sorts. I resorted to blues may calemel, quinine and all remedies suggested, but only obtained temporary relief. One dose of S. L. R. did me more good than the $100 worth of doctors and doctoring Respectfully, T. C. MARKLEY.

Yan Phos Lee, who is being sued by his American wife for absolute divorce in New York on the usual ground, said yesterday that he would not make any attempt at a defence of the suit; in fact, he would be happy when the couris severed the chain which linked him to the rich helrees and brought him into unpiessant relations with brought him into unpiessant relations with his wife's mother. He denies the charges about his fondness for other women, but says that he would rather be a free man again than win the case. The story of Yan's courtship and marriage is one of remance, tingled with a suggestion of mercenary motives. His bride was the wealthy daughter of Mr. Hezekian Gillert, of New Haven. Yan met her shortly after his graduation from Yale College, and they were married after an acquaintance of a few months. The wedding was a very swell affair, and took place in Hartford. The Chinaman and his American bride were apparently a happy couple till the mother of the wife appeared on the scene. She accused Yan of marrying in order to get possession of Maud's $80,000. This the bridgeroom de-nied, and went to San Francisco to accept a $1,500 place in a bank. Mrs. Phon Lee refused to accompany her husband, so Yau returned after a short visit and was told that he must answer in court for his conduct since marriage. Yesterday he made a statement of his affairs, which throws some light on the part played by the mother-in-law. From his editorial room in the office of the Chinese Advocate Yan issued this bulletin:

I plunged into the uncertain sea of matrimony without much thought, while my blood was warm and I was flushed with success and confident that I could get along somehow.

But I reckoned without my mother-inlaw, from whose overmuchness I, as well as many men, have suffered and am suffer-

Petty persecutions and constant faultfinding almost broke my spirit and unfitted me for work. By the time our first child was born things had grown so bad and I had so little money or chance of getting any, that I accepted the offer of the San Francis-

My wife refused to stay with me there Here was a dilemma. Wealth and fortune or at least competency, on the one hand, and wife and children (with mother-in-'aw and poverty) on the other.

But my wife, dragged almost by her mother, who hates me like poisor, seems bound to te free, and so I bave decided to let the case go by default.

A YACHT OVERTURNED -There was a parrow escape from a great disaster at wharf at Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday afternoon. As it was, one of the leading professional men of that city, Architect E. W. Wells, was drowned, and a dezen others had very narrow escapes. About five o'clock the ball game was over, and the people in attendance flocked down Front street, on the island, to the landing of the naptha yacht ferry to be transported to the city. Sixtoen passengers, two of them ladies, crowded into the yacht Gertrude and started across. When three-fourths of the way over a lady's dress became caught in a pulley block, through which the tiller rope ran, and the yacht became unmanaged.

McLaughlin, a business man, were swept under a barge. The three last named were rescued in an unconscious condition, but were resuscita-ted; but Architect Wells was drowned. The other twelve occupants of the yacht had very narrow escapes, but were rescued.

A SKELETON IN A BOILER -An official boiler inspector of Pierre, S. Dakots, found on Monday, the bleached skeleton of a man in the mammoth boiler in the gas works. The boiler has been in constant use since Jan. 1, and the identity of the man or how he came there is a mystery nobody seems able to solve. The flesh was all boiled from the bones. His boots, sbreds of clothing and a few coins were all that were found.
